

Andrew M. Moss

ANDREW M. MOSS was born and raised in Miami. He received his undergraduate degrees in U.S. history and journalism from Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

During and after college, he worked as a freelance journalist. Drew was then hired by a presidential campaign as a writer and media and policy advisor. He has co-authored a book on Medicare and the American health system, and has spoken around the country on these subjects as well as other political issues.

A second-generation Miami attorney, Drew attended the University of Miami School of Law, from which he graduated cum laude in 1999.

In 2011, Drew was honored in the prestigious publication, Best Lawyers in America, in three separate practice areas: General personal injury litigation, medical malpractice, and product liability. In 2010-11, he was honored as a Law Dragon Finalist – one of the top 3,000 lawyers in the United States. In 2010 and 2011, he was also named to the Florida Legal Elite as one of the top lawyers in Florida. He was listed among the top 2.5% of lawyers under the age of 40 in Florida by the Florida Super Lawyers and Law & Politics publication, and is listed among the top young lawyers in South Florida by the South Florida Legal Guide. Drew is “AV” rated by Martindale Hubbell, the highest rating for legal accomplishment, professional achievement and ethics. Currently, Drew serves the secretary of the Board of Directors of the Miami-Dade Justice Association (formerly the Dade County Trial Lawyers Association).

He is married to Kara and they have two daughters.
